- In the backcountry, keep your permit with you.
- Check-in / Check-out Times: Frontcountry: You may arrive at your site any time after 3:00 p.m. on your first day, and depart no later than 12:00 noon on your day of departure. Backcountry: You may arrive at your site any time after 12:00 noon on your first day, and depart no later than 11:00 a.m. on your day of departure. Be mindful that another visitor may be waiting for your canoe to be returned to the launch area.
 - SPECIAL CONSIDERATIONS IN THE BACKCOUNTRY: These sites first require travel by private watercraft or water taxi to a trailhead, and then hiking up to several miles to the campsite. Private watercrafts must be left at the trailhead and not portaged into backcountry lakes. Once in the backcountry, a combination code is needed to unlock and use the park's canoes. Be certain that you have made a reservation and and bring your permit as it will include this information. To prevent the spread of aquatic invasive species: private watercrafts cannot be portaged into backcountry lakes, nor can float planes land on them; use artificial bait only; all gear must be decontaminated or dried for 5 days prior to using in backcountry lakes; clean all water, plants, mud, etc. from gear before leaving a lake. Bring in and wear your own Personal Flotation Device (PFD); only canoes and paddles are provided with a canoe reservation. Bring rope to hang food in case a bear pole is not present, and always treat lake water before using it for drinking or cooking.
 - Campfires: Fires are allowed in designated metal fire rings only. Do not burn trash, pack everything out - there are trash and recycling receptacles at the boat landings.
 - Bear Safety: Use the provided bear lockers (in frontcountry) and bear poles (in backcountry) to prevent bear interactions. Report animal encounters to a visitor center.
 - Wood gathering: Chainsaws are not allowed at campsites. Bring DNR-approved firewood with you in frontcountry. Do not cut or damage standing vegetation, living or dead. Only dead and downed wood may be collected for fires.
 - Water: it is suggested to haul in water to your campsite. Potable water is available at all park visitor centers.
